Dear Mr. Casey:

The School of Public Affairs at the University of Maryland is currently accepting applications for our Mid-Career Programs for Fall 1983. I would like your assistance in identifying a few individuals in your organization who are interested in making a commitment to serious professional development and have the ability to thrive in both a challenging academic and work environment.

Of special significance is our Mid-Career Fellowship Program. A limited number of highly-talented professionals, who are nominated by their employer, will be selected for participation each year. As a Fellow, the individual will be involved in an educational and networking opportunity that is unsurpassed; in addition to receiving financial aid equal to one half of the tuition.

I have enclosed a copy of our mid-career catalog which provides a description of our degree and non-degree programs. Of particular interest may be our focused specialties in Public Management headed by Allen Schick and Frank Levy; Government and the Private Economy directed by George Eads; National Security lead by Catherine Kelleher; and Analytical Skills, a combined effort of the entire faculty. Our unique curriculum and our commitment to keeping the School small and select, makes for an extraordinary, stimulating environment.

If you know of anyone whom you feel would be a good candidate for study here at the School, please have them contact either me or Mrs. Lyn Chasen, our Director of Admissions and Mid-Career Programs. We would be delighted to talk with them.

Sincerely,

Albert H. Bowker
Dean
